The top picture on Slide 4 has the following description on a web site I was able to find with old pictures of Newark:

At Jackson Street Bridge

This is a view from the Jackson Street Bridge looking west. The Newark Express Company on the left is the foot of Madison Street. The Gas Tank behind the smokestack is at the corner of Market, Congress & Prospect Street. If you look closely at the background through the fog/smog you can see the skyline for that year. The right side of the photo is Harrison. The bridge you see is the railroad bridge. The photo was taken before 1912.

From "Newark - The City of Industry" Published 1912

The bottom one is shown on that web site too, but only says "Postcard" with no info.

The web site is: Newarkphotos.com/waterways

Hey Alice -

I believe this is a presentation you gave at the LPR Forum at Montclair a couple years back. I was taking a look through it as we prepare for CSTAG to see what pics I could poach. On Slide 4 there are some historic photos of the river – do you recall when these are from?
